

What are the California Climate Credits?

A Message from the California Public Utilities Commission

This April* your utility bill will include a credit identified as the “California Climate Credit” for residential utility customers or the “Small Business Climate Credit” for small business utility customers. Households and small businesses throughout the state, including yours, will receive this credit on their utility bills. This credit is paid as a flat rate amount twice a year.

These Climate Credits are part of California’s efforts to fight climate change. This credit is from a state program that requires power plants, natural gas providers, and other large industries that emit greenhouse gases to buy carbon pollution permits. The credit on your bill is your share of the payments from the State’s program.

These Climate Credits are one of many programs resulting from landmark legislation called the Global Warming Solutions Act of 2006. Together, these programs are cutting pollution, creating jobs, and investing in cleaner energy and transportation.

Your Climate Credit is designed to help you join in these efforts.

 Billing periods vary by utility and may not always coincide with a calendar month. If you do not see a Climate Credit on the bill that arrives this month, it will appear on the bill you receive next month. If you are an electric customer, the electric credit will appear as a line item on the electric portion of your bill. If you are a residential gas customer, the gas credit will appear as a line item on the gas portion of your bill. If you receive both residential electric and gas service, you will also see the electric and gas credits on their respective portions of your utility bill. Small business customers only receive an electric credit.*
